

The Innovation (Teaching and Learning) Award recognizes the outstanding achievements by George Brown College faculty members who have demonstrated innovations in their teaching practice that have impacted student learning.

ELIGIBILITY

This award recognizes the contribution made by an individual or team demonstrating excellence in their work through actions of integrity and dedication, and an ongoing commitment towards the success of George Brown College and its communities. The nominee(s) are full or part-time faculty with a minimum of two years service (or six semesters of teaching) who have not received the same award within the past two years.

NOMINATION CRITERIA

The Nominee:

- Innovates their teaching practice in a manner that has a positive impact on student learning.
- Innovates their teaching practice in an original manner or as a unique adaptation of a process or concept.
- Develops an innovation that demonstrably leads to a better outcome.
- Develops an innovation that is current and adaptive to technological applications and that can be replicated in other programs with a minimum of difficulty.
- Develops an innovation that, in the opinion of students or colleagues, increases the quality in a course, program, department, or the institution.
- Develops an innovation as a result of considerable collaborative effort with another team within the College.
